FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Sylvan Dell Publishing offers eBook site licensing nationwide

MT. PLEASANT, S.C. (June 3, 2008) – Children's book publisher Sylvan Dell is spreading their mission of "science and math through literature" by offering eBook site licensing to schools and educators nationwide.

Sylvan Dell was founded in 2004 by Lee and Donna German. Since then, the Sylvan Dell family has grown to include over 50 authors and illustrators and 35 titles, honored as nominees, finalists or winners of more than 50 book awards. Each book contains a special "For Creative Minds" section, which provides fun activities and information to enhance the book's educational value. Individual eBooks for a single homeschooler or classroom are available for $6.95 per title. Spanish eBook translations are included in that price.

Recently, Sylvan Dell decided to offer their eBooks via site licensing. Site licensing allows individual schools or school districts to share Sylvan Dell's bilingual eBooks, which allows educators to seamlessly transition between English and Spanish audio and text, with every student—whether that be an individual using the homeroom's computer or the entire grade visiting the computer lab.

Sylvan Dell site licensing is wonderful for use with Interactive Whiteboards (Smartboards), which allow all students to follow along, circle words, and visually and physically interact with the text/images during read-aloud sessions. The eBooks are also ideal for English as a Second Language students and stressing cross-curriculum learning. Students can practice elementary science vocabulary in English and Spanish. Classrooms can mix English text with Spanish audio, Spanish text with English audio, or keep things monolingual.

Prices are as follows:
